In the Footsteps of Sheep-Debbie Zawinski 2016 "In the Footsteps of Sheep details the completion of a mission the author, a Welsh-born Scot, set for herself: to travel and camp throughout Scotland, find cast off tufts of wool from 10 Scottish sheep breeds, then spin the wool on her spinning stick while walking (or waiting for ferries), and finally design and knit one pair of socks to represent each breed ... all the while writing about her adventures and taking plenty of photographs. Debbie has written beautifully about her journey; the hills, shorelines, and bogs explored; the sheep and people she met along the way; weather both foul and fair, and a particularly exciting chapter about the intriguing St. Kilda archipelago and its feral Soay and Boreray sheep. The eleven sock patterns, one at the end of each chapter, are a bonus and, for those of us unable to gather and spin our own fleece, all were test-knitted with commercial wool. The designs are knitted from top to toe with different motifs, among them color-patterns, cables, spirals, stripes, Kilt Hose with top-turnovers, and a pair of baby booties."--Provided from Amazon.com.

Ski Trails and Wildlife-Eric Burr 2008-05-08 Snow sports are usually the first step to learning about snow country wildlife, which is only as safe as knowledgeable people want it to be. Unfortunately knowledge is too often lacking, and skiing is perceived as detrimental too wildlife. Reality is that skiing in all its many forms, from ski lift resorts to far flung Scandinavian style ski touring, holds the keys to wildlife conservation and restoration. No amount of litigation can change this basic fact of life, although the Mineral King Case (from the Supreme Court of the United States) certainly changed the legal landscape for all environmental litigation. Mineral King’s near miss at becoming another ski lift avalanche disaster area preceded Early Winters, another almost ski lift area which shares the honor of being a Supreme Court case, and is the last chapter of this book. Olympic National Park is the other ski history explored, so that the National Parks are given equal emphasis with America’s National Forests and Canada’s Crown Lands. An extensive bibliography also includes many electronically available sources. The language is not technical and no prior experience with either skiing or wildlife is presumed. The book is primarily written for both skiing and wildlife enthusiasts, who may not know much about each other. It is intended as a peace offering to hopefully prevent future ski wars and unnecessary trips through the legal system. That effort could be better spent restoring wildlife and the life support system of our circumpolar boreal forest.

Zane Greyáo»s Wild West-Victor Carl Friesen 2013-11-13 This is a literary discussion of one-half of Zane Grey’s Westerns, selected to best show the broad scope of this popular author’s interests in the West. The text explains how these novels “work,” while pointing out Grey’s ecological concern for the natural world—its vastness, color and beauty. Wild nature provides a powerful setting but is a determinant of action and of character too. The range of subjects encompasses not only cowboys but also prospectors, foresters and other frontiersmen, from the end of the Revolutionary War to the flapper era of the 1920s. World War I veterans, including an American Indian, are portrayed in several books, and women are colorful main protagonists in others, all uniquely characterized. Grey’s sure ear for dialogue is key to his vivid presentation of the ideals of the Old West.

In the Footsteps of the Blue and Gray-Brian A. Brown 1996 The "purpose in writing this book is to fill a perceived need for a comprehensive guide to available Civil War resources of genealogical value. To the best [of the author's] knowledge, no one has ever attempted to compile a descriptive inventory of the types of records available at both state and federal levels, as well as records available through such private organizations as the Latter Day Saints Genealogical Library, the American Genealogical Lending Library, and other private institutions. The goal is to provide sufficient information not only to alert the genealogist to the availability of the resource, but also to inform the researcher sufficiently of its content, its organization, and its coverage so that an informed decision can be made to either investigate, or to ignore, a particular lead"--Introd.

Grey Owl and Me-Hap Wilson 2017-06-21 Hap Wilson is back for another journey, this time on the lighter side of the adventure trail, where the bizarre melds with the sublime. Nurtured by the writings of Canadian environmentalist and wannabe-Native, Grey Owl, Wilson adopted a lifestyle similar to the 1930s conservationist but with his own twists and turns along a meandering path full of humorous misadventures. Wilson, too, learned many of his nature skills as a youth, paddling in Temagami, working as a wilderness canoe ranger and guide, and following in the footsteps of one of Canada’s most revered outdoor icons. The author recounts early days winter camping, motorcycling the Labrador coast, and teaching actor Pierce Brosnan how to throw knives and paddle a canoe for the Richard Attenborough film about Grey Owl. He also takes us to a few of his favourite places and shares intimate secrets of wilderness living. Here, Grey Owl has returned as an ever-present critic - a buckskin-clad spectre in a modern world of Gore-Tex, Kevlar canoes, and gear freaks.

Good and Evil Light and Dark and the Grey Mists in Between-Caedmon Holland 2020-11-11 Concepts are black and white. Ideas are black and white. But the world we live in is a steely gray, and along with the future and past, much remains hidden to the average person. Inside this book are chilling tales of what might have been, what could be, and what may be already. From jungles to deserts, from past to future, the people, places, and things within each story may be completely different, but each account has a collective purpose—to reveal. These short stories seek to pierce through the fog of mystery and deliver frightful messages that make even the most steadfast in their own knowledge hesitate, reflect, and ask, "What if?" These narratives are written to make you pause at that mysterious creak in your house when you know it’s just you alone at home, to look over your shoulder on that moonlit walk when the sound of footsteps tracing yours reaches your ears, and take heed of the sounds surrounding you in the forest when you are at peace and think all is well: For when you take the time to peer through the enshrouding mists that veil the world and its history, you never know what you’ll find staring right back at you.
